

PRIVACY POLICY

Last updated: September 30, 2014

IAS Information System Inc. ("IAS") is committed to protect the privacy of those who use our software products and services. The following statements will explain how IAS collects, use and safeguard the information provided by you through our website.

Collection and Use of Information

By placing an order or enrolling in a service with IAS, you are consenting to the collecting and use of your information for the following purposes:

- a. processing of your orders;
- b. communication with you about your account;
- c. responding to your inquires;
- d. sending you service-related announcements.

We will communicate with you either by email or telephone in accordance with your wishes. Generally, you may not opt-out of these communications. If you do not wish to receive them, you have the option to deactivate or cancel your account.

Information you provide to us will be protected and safeguarded according to our strict standards of security and confidentiality.

Disclosure of Information Collected

We will not disclose, sell, rent, or otherwise share information about you to other companies save and except for the following purposes:

- a. Providing your information to third party service provider

IAS may, in some cases, use third party service provider to assist in providing you with the requested services. All such service providers are expect to abide by our Privacy Policy when conducting work for us and are prohibited from using the information provided for any other purpose. You agree to the release of those information about you to them for the sole purpose of facilitating your request.

- b. Compliance with judicial proceeding

In the event of any legal process served on IAS requiring the disclosure of information about you, IAS reserves the right to disclose your information in compliance with such judicial proceeding or court order. Unless prohibited legally, we will advise you either by email or telephone when such disclose occurs.

Retention and Destruction of Information Collected

We will only retain personal information for timeframes required for the purposes as outlined in the “Collection and Use of Information” section of this Privacy Policy. We will maintain processes to securely destroy personal identification when it is no longer required to support your request.

Security

We offer industry-standard security measures in our website to give you the safest and most powerful online experience. Security measures are in place to protect against loss, misuse and alteration of information under our control.

Children Visiting Our Website

This website is directed at adults only. If you are under 18, you may use it only with the involvement of a parent or guardian.

Consent to Posted Privacy Policy and Changes to Privacy Policy

By using this website, you consent to our posted Privacy Policy. If you disagree our Privacy Policy, please do not use it.

IAS reserves the right to modify this Privacy Policy at any time. Any changes will be posted on this website and any other places we deemed appropriate. Your continued use of this website following the posting of any such changes constitute your acceptance of the changes.

To Access/Correct/Update/Deactivate

As a subscriber of our products or services, you have the right to access the information you have provided to us, request change to any inaccuracy, or deletion of all such information. It is your right not to provide us with some or all of your personal information, or to deny us the use or disclosure of your information for certain purposes. Should you exercise this right, it may impede our ability to deliver the products and/or services request by you. As such you have the option to deactivate your account, or we, as service provider, may exercise our right to do so.

Withdrawing your Consent

You may withdraw your consent to any further collection of your information by us, or discontinue further communication from us to you. We will act promptly on your requests. You can communicate all such requests by using one of the following methods:

Call: 1-800-510-3357

Fax: 1-416-510-8336

Email: support@iasinformationsys.com

Mail:

IAS Information System Inc.

255 Duncan Mill Road, Suite 303,

Toronto, Ontario.

M3B 3H9